

Bristol School Athletes Have Walk-Over in 'Class A' in Annual Meet Held Here Saturday

SUPERVISORS TO HAVE HEARING CONTINUED TODAY

Solebury Injunction Proceedings Delayed Until This Week

THRU A TECHNICALITY

One Group Looks Upon Proceedings As A "Joke;" Others Serious

DOYLESTOWN, May 19.—Judge Hiram H. Keller, sitting in equity, Friday granted the motion of John L. DuBois, of Doylestown, counsel for William L. Ely and Silas M. Heath, supervisors of Solebury township, to dissolve a preliminary injunction granted in the case of Colonel George VanOrder, of Solebury township, against Supervisors Ely and Heath, recently.

"Ridiculous and simple" were among the numerous adjectives used in describing the actions of Colonel VanOrder, of Solebury township, for bringing actions into court that counsel declared "held up the work of the supervisors of Solebury township indefinitely."

In the motion filed, Supervisors Ely and Heath, two of the three supervisors of the township, moved the Court to dismiss the injunction and to dismiss the bill for the following reasons:

"The granting of the preliminary injunction was in direct violation of the provisions of equity rule No. 38. The preliminary injunction was granted without notice to the defendant and hearing on said notice and without the filing of an affidavit that immediate and irreparable loss or damage will result to plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice."

"The bill should be dismissed for the further reason that the bill itself shows that if the payment complained of is illegal, excessive and unwarranted, an action at law would lay, in the nature of an appeal to surcharge the supervisors. Such a proceeding is now before this Court and by the same plaintiff and exactly upon the same allegations. The filing of a bill by a taxpayer against the supervisors to restrain the payment of an account alleged by the taxpayer to be excessive or illegal would entail a never-ending series of equity suits if such taxpayer had in mind a tantalizing and oppressive method of domination. An appeal from an audit of Supervisor's accounts is the only method; a bill for the granting of an injunction is irregular and highly improper."

After the injunction had been dismissed, counsel for Colonel VanOrder, the taxpayer mentioned in the proceedings, was granted the right to file another bill a hearing on which was fixed for today. The desire of counsel for Colonel VanOrder to have the case proceed by filing a new bill, was denied by Judge Keller after Mr. DuBois said that he objected to it.

The numerous proceedings brought against the Supervisors of Solebury township are looked upon as "a joke" by one group and "seriously" by another group. One group, headed by Colonel VanOrder, alleges that "the township is being robbed by payment of excessive bills for hauling stone," while the other group answers the claim by saying that "an appeal from the audit of the Supervisors is the only method to remedy the cause if there is any discrepancy."

Many Attend Procession At St. Mark's Church

The annual May Day Procession was held yesterday at St. Mark's Church. There was a large gathering and the children made a most impressive appearance as they marched from the school to the church.

The May Queen was Miss Mary McCahon and she was accompanied by six ring bearers.

HEAD IS CUT

Albert James, 3012 Stiles street, Philadelphia, suffered a cut upon his head when a five-pound piece of iron fell upon him yesterday. Two stitches were taken at the Harriman Hospital and he was discharged this morning. James was working for the Vane Construction Company on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Morrisville when the accident occurred.

THE VOTER'S OPPORTUNITY

Bristol Citizens Publicity Committee for Joseph R. Grundy for United States Senator Issues Statement So As to Better Acquaint the Voters of Bristol With The Importance of Marking Their Ballots for Joseph R. Grundy, A Fellow-Townsmen, for United States Senator, at the Republican Primary Election, May 20

CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON
CHAIRMAN

SECRETARY

TOMORROW will be election day, at which time the voters of Bristol will have the opportunity to vote for one of their neighbors, for the office of United States Senator. This neighbor, Senator Joseph R. Grundy, has by his record of constructive leadership, shown himself to be, without question, the man best fitted to succeed himself in the Senate.

Senator Grundy has said: "This is the people's fight far more than it is mine."

It is up to the Republican voters of Pennsylvania to decide whether or not they want a representative in the Senate of the United States who because of his business acumen, his knowledge of those things which are essential to the progress and development of the Keystone State and whose ability, integrity and general fitness peculiarly equip him for such an office, or whether they prefer representation by one who is backed by a group of professional politicians bent upon personal aggrandizement rather than patriotic motives and a desire to serve their State and Nation.

But to the voters of Bristol the campaign which is now closing has a very close and local significance. A townsman and neighbor is a candidate for nomination to the high office of United States Senator. For years he has given his time and financial assistance in promoting the best interests of the town and his fellow-citizens. His benefactions are too well known to necessitate their repetition. He has been a consistent and persistent Bristol Booster.

His record for leadership in public affairs in the State and Nation has been on the same high plane of conspicuous usefulness that won for him the highest encomiums of praise. His appointment as Senator by Governor John S. Fisher won for him the laudatory comments of politicians, statesmen, newspapers and industrial, educational and other leaders throughout the State. His championship of the State aroused the pride of every Pennsylvanian in his citizenship. His success in his fight to have Congress enact tariff rates which would at least give a measure of protection to labor, industrial, agricultural and the general business interest of our citizens, has demonstrated his qualities of leadership, and shown him to be without question, the man best fitted to succeed himself in the Senate of the United States.

Senator Grundy has fought a manly fight. Everybody admires clean sportsmanship, and the elements of sportsmanship which Senator Grundy has displayed in his great fight which he has directed almost single-handed, will win for him the support of thousands of voters.

The question which is brought home to us, his neighbors and fellow-citizens, on the eve of the election, is this: Are we, his own townsmen, with a knowledge of all that he has done to promote the best interests of the town and his fellow-

INDEPENDENT CLUB HOLDS ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Nearly 300 Italian Voters Hear Senator Grundy Lauded

LIGHT REPAST SERVED

There was a rousing meeting held yesterday afternoon by the members of the Italian Independent Club in the club rooms on Lincoln avenue.

The meeting was attended by approximately 300 men, and numerous speeches were made in the interest of Senator Joseph R. Grundy.

Gaetano Greco acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers, all of whom lauded the work which Senator Grundy has done since a member of the U. S. Senate, and they spoke in glowing praise of what he has done for the Italian people as a whole.

Among the speakers were: Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, J. Leslie Killoynne, James L. McGee, Anthony Russo, and Dr. Vincent Ciccone, St. Agnes Hospital, Philadelphia.

The address of Dr. Ciccone was particularly pleasing and brought forth much applause.

A light repast was served.

NARROWS HOTEL RAID THIRD IN THREE YEARS

State Police Take Two Men and Three Women into Custody

QUANTITY OF LIQUOR

KINTNERSVILLE, May 19.—For the third time in three years the notorious Narrows Hotel, on the River Road, near here, was raided at 12:30 Friday night by State Police from the Doylestown sub-station. Two men and two women were arrested in the raid and a quantity of liquor was seized.

The women, Marjorie Smith, 27, of Scranton, and Marion Clark, 35, of Broad street, Bethlehem, were taken to the county prison at Doylestown, but were discharged Saturday by Justice W. Carlisle Hobensack. Police say there is no evidence against the women to hold them.

Joseph Treky, 40, of 701 East Fifth street, Bethlehem, was arrested at the hotel. He is said to be the owner of the property. Joseph Sigmond, 35, of Milford, N. J., was arrested as the proprietor of the hotel. Both men were lodged in the county prison for a hearing before Justice Hobensack. The raid netted forty bottles of high powered beer, three quarts of whiskey, one gallon of wine, two slot machines and a punch board.

Police say the Narrows Hotel, as it appears today, is one of the worst "dives" in Bucks county. There is evidence, police say, that the place has harbored thugs and underworld characters for many months and has been the scene of numerous drunken parties at all hours of the day and night.

Communication

Editor, Courier.

Sir:—It seems to me that the people of Bristol are taking a very peculiar position toward the election of Joseph R. Grundy as Senator from Pennsylvania.

During his lifetime, Mr. Grundy has probably given half a million dollars to Bristol. During this time the taxes have been unusually low. If it were not for Mr. Grundy's very generous donations every person in Bristol would have to pay heavier taxes.

If it were not for Mr. Grundy, Bristol would be lost between Philadelphia and Trenton, but Mr. Grundy has remained loyal to Bristol and kept it constantly before the nation instead of connecting his name with Philadelphia which would have been very easy for him to do.

Now when Mr. Grundy confronts his biggest fight, his home town is not 100% in back of him. Aren't the people rather "cutting off their nose to spite their face" and forgetting the real meaning of gratitude?

Yours very truly,
CHARLES H. LANDRETH.

BUCKS COUNTY BOY CROWNED "MIB" KING

Newtown Lad Wins Honors of Metropolitan Title by Taking Four Games

ENTERS NATIONAL FINAL

PHILA., May 19.—A stocky lad of thirteen, from Newtown, Bucks county, is the new marbles champion of the Philadelphia metropolitan area.

Playing like a boy possessed, Winfield Hoffmeister, a seventh grade pupil in the Newtown Junior High School, eliminated Anthony Stanislawski, 14, of Conshohocken, Montgomery county champion in the final series of five games at "Ringer Stadium," City Hall plaza, Saturday.

It took Hoffmeister just four of the scheduled five to emerge the victor, 7-6, 7-6, 5-8, 10-3.

Just a few games earlier this lad from Bucks county sent the Philadelphia champion down to defeat in what he described as the hardest and closest fight of the day. He nosed out Clarke Long, eleven, 748 Alden street, best two of three, by the scores of 8-5, 5-8, 7-6.

Once the Philadelphia boy was out of the picture, "Hofy," as his Bucks county friends call him, was a favorite of the crowd. Wearing a bright red sweater, his face alight with a smile which seemed to match it, he was repeatedly cheered when he came from behind to take games which seemed almost lost.

And "Hofy" had to fight every inch of the way. He drew less "byes" than anybody, and had to eliminate three opponents before he was declared the champion.

In Stanislawski, he found a real opponent. The Montgomery county boy took the lead in the first game, but "Hofy," whom the crowd already had discovered played best when his opponents were ahead, "knuckled down" and ran several "mibs" to take that game.

ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Joseph V. O'Donnell, of 736 Beaver street, entertained the members of her bridge club on Thursday evening. Favors were given to Mrs. Fred Bux, Jr., and Mrs. J. C. Schmidt, Jr. At the next meeting of the club Mrs. Schmidt will be hostess.

ROLL UP SCORE OF 46 1/2 POINTS AGAINST THREE COMPETITORS

Perkasie - Sellersville Finish 2nd in Class A Schools; Morrisville 3rd

NEW HOPE WINS CLASS B

Bristol Township Ran Away With Competitors in Class C with 38 Points

In the most successful athletic meet ever held by the public schools of Bucks County, 16 records were smashed here on Saturday at the 10th annual track and field carnival. Close to 500 boys and girls from every public school in Bucks County with the exception of Doylestown and Bensalem participated in the 62 events.

It was the first time that the meet had ever been held elsewhere other than at George School and all those concerned were delighted with the arrangements and the organization perfected for the conduct of the affair.

The arrangements were ideal throughout. There was less interference with the contestants than ever before and the policing done by the Bristol police and the Boy Scouts was unexcelled. Each school had a class room at its disposal and huge amplifiers called the contestants to their headquarters and announced the events as well as the results of the various contests.

The large high school field permitted the various events to be staged without crowding and the spectators had ample room to view the competitions.

In Class A, Coach Townsend's Bristol High athletes had things easy by scoring a total of 46 1/2 points. Others in the same class finished as follows: Perkasie - Sellersville Consolidated High, 29 points; Morrisville High, 23 1/2 points; Quakertown High, 9 1/2 points.

New Hope, with a sturdy band of athletes in Class B, carried away the honors with 62 1-6 points, while Langhorne scored 39 5-6 and Newtown 24 points.

In Class C, Bristol Township ran away with her competitors by scoring 38 points, with her closest competition being furnished by her sister school, Bristol Borough, with 12 points. Other points in Class C were Morrisville, 10; Langhorne, 6; Quakertown, 6.

Newtown, with a total of 22 points won the Class D cup. Others were: Lower Southampton township, 16; New Hope, 15; Hulmeville, 13; South Langhorne, 6.

Probably the finest exhibition of the afternoon came in Class E when Karl Rembe, 19-year-old Yardley High School senior, scored a total of 31 points for his team alone, out of a 39 registered by Yardley to win the cup. Rembe broke three meet records himself. Others in Class E finished as follows: Edgewood, 29; Richboro, 26; Southampton, 14.

Rogers Would Trade Solons for Grundy

The following is taken from the Inquirer of May 17th:

To the Editor of The Inquirer.—Beverly Hills, Calif., May 16.—Democratic leader of the House, John Garner, of Texas, and ordinarily a mighty smart man, wants to divide Texas into five States, giving it ten Senators, so it would get us folks in the South a little more equal representation.

Instead of getting eight more for the South, I would trade all I did have for Senator Joe Grundy. Uncle Joe would fix us up a tariff down below that Montgomery-Ward line that would soon have us so well off we would all turn Republicans. Numbers don't get you nothing. It's individuals that get you something.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PIONEERS

Statistics compiled by the Canadian government divulge that during the last twelve years hundreds of thousands of citizens of the United States have emigrated to Canada carrying with them $163,470,533 in money and personal effects.

This country is loath to lose this wealth and these citizens and yet it knows the benefits to be derived from this emigration more than offset the loss in men and money. These emigrants partially explain the long and uninterrupted period of peace and understanding existing between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and constitute a guarantee for the perpetuation of this mutually happy condition.

There are probably as many Canadians emigrating to the United States as there are Americans taking up permanent residence in Canada and the great number of Americans on farms and in other occupations in Canada undoubtedly are helping this country to maintain its balance of trade with their adopted country.

It seems natural that this country, which has been the scene of so much pioneering and advancing of frontiers, should send men with the strength and vision to reclaim the fertile Canadian wilderness. There is a reason for the premium the Canadian government has placed on American immigrants during the last two decades.

GREATNESS

Human qualities alone do not make greatness, in its true sense. The possession of real greatness comes from qualities of the divine which show forth in the demeanor of man. Greatness that is genuine is characterized by simplicity. He who is truly great does not put himself forward. Perfect peace, which manifests itself in speech and in action, is an outstanding mark of greatness. The world spontaneously volunteers admiration for the one who can remain unmoved by the storms of strife and passion which sway other men about him.

Candor and straightforward speaking are found in those who are really great. They have nothing to conceal, they have no need to deceive. What they say comes from their hearts and may be depended upon. The great man is tolerant of the opinions of others; he is charitable toward their failings; he is genuinely sympathetic in their sorrow; he rejoices in their successes.

Such are some of the qualities of greatness, which are deeper and of more worth than many of the material symbols for which men are often more inclined to work toward. Real greatness consists in showing forth the image and likeness of God.

The school of experience has no class reunions.

Money will buy almost anything, especially when it's spent for whisky.

The line of least resistance leads downward and the line of most persistence leads upward.

It is savage to sacrifice children in the name of religion; we do it only in the name of speed.

you. Did you—mean—that?" Stella whispered.

"I did!"—with the decisiveness of anger.

"Then, you—wouldn't care if—I left you?" She scarcely heard the words herself, so low were they.

"There you go again with your nonsense! Why will you keep it up? Get off this topic of Moira and myself! Try something you can be cheerful about for a change!"

He went back to his chair and sat down, heavily, uneasily, as a man does when not in full control of himself. She had never seen him so angry.

"You—wouldn't care if—I left you with Moira?"

"I would not!" He almost shouted it.

With despair rendering her incapable of further speech, she rose, tremblingly and weakly, went out on to the veranda and down the steps, scarcely knowing where she went, or why. Presently she found herself on the beach, near her favourite mango-tree. She wanted to be alone—alone with her despair.

The lagoon was very peaceful just now, she thought, more peaceful than ever she had seen it. The night was dark, but clear, and the water was a breadth of softest velvet, flecked with stars. There was something inviting about it, the soft velvet was invitation to rest; the lap of the tide against the sand at her feet was like small voices calling sweetly.

For a long time she sat there, in complete submission to despair. Hope and happiness were gone from her. What else remained? she asked herself. Behind her through the palm-boles, gleamed the light in the house. Moira would be back from the village now, she thought. She would be with David. He might be telling her of the quarrel. And she would be comforting him. Comforting him! Ah, well, it didn't matter now. Nothing mattered now. She rose and went slowly along the beach. She thought she might feel a little better if she couldn't see the light.

Presently she came to a small canoe about against the beach, left there for the night by its fisherman owner. The fancy came to her to drift awhile on the soft, inviting bosom of the lagoon. Its peace seemed promising of comfort. Half an hour—an hour—on that soft, velvet water—

She cast off the fastening rope, stepped on board, and sat down. The canoe drifted slowly out.

She did not notice that there was no paddle in the canoe, nor that the ebbing tide was bearing her towards the exit of the lagoon.

CHAPTER XIII

Anxious, troubled and afraid of his thoughts, David Wade knocked on the wall beside the curtained doorway of Moira Melfosse's room.

"Moira!" he called. "Are you awake, Moira?"

A soft "Come in!" answered him, and he pulled aside the curtain. The half-closed mosquito netted bed stood at the opposite end of the room.

"I am sorry to disturb you," said Wade; "but—"

"You are not disturbing me, David," her voice came to him, low-toned and alluring. Then, as he made to move, her bare arm came out and threw up the side of the mosquito-net with a movement distinctly inviting.

Wade frowned.

"Have you seen Stella?" he asked sharply.

"Stella?" She sat up, a white shape down which the blackness of her hair was like a torrent. "You've come here—to look for Stella?" The allure in her tone was gone, displaced by something akin to disappointment.

"I thought you might have seen her, perhaps she had been here," said Wade. "She—she doesn't appear to have been home all night."

"I have seen nothing of her," she rose, wrapped herself in a many coloured kimono, which disingenuously revealed her body's lines, and came to him.

"You seem very concerned."

"Naturally. I am afraid to think what might have happened to her. You see, last night we—"

"Yes," she interrupted putting into the questioning note something more than mere questioning.

"We had a disagreement," he went on agitatedly, "and I am afraid I said something which hurt her very much. I haven't seen her since, and do you think—she would be likely to—"

He shrank from finishing the sentence. "But of course she wouldn't; she is too sensible."

"What were you disagreeing about—David?" she asked in a half-drawn tone.

"A private matter," he replied abruptly.

The hint of satisfaction in her smile became more than a hint.

"I wonder if I can guess what it was," she said.

citizens, going to show our appreciation, and the just pride which we should feel in the honor which has come to a citizen who is eminently qualified to meet the requirement of such a high office, by giving him our united support?

The time for us to make the decision is at hand. The people of the State and Nation will be looking on to see how the friends and neighbors of Senator Grundy, in his home town, will support him in the conflict tomorrow. It can be said to the credit of Bristol in the past that it never wavered in its support of a townsman who ran for an office that was above and beyond the gift of the community.

Actuated by the same spirit of civic pride, and neighborly kindness and loyalty, there is every reason to believe that the voters of Bristol will go to the polls tomorrow, and thinking only of their duty to a fellow-citizen, give Senator Grundy their united support. The people of Bristol will vote to nominate Senator Grundy. They will vote to put Bristol on the map.

Fines and Costs Imposed Upon Group Under Arrest

Fines and costs imposed upon a quintet of men from Philadelphia when a hearing was given them on charges of disorderly conduct at the office of Squire J. Alfred Rigby, Cornwells Heights, Saturday afternoon, totaled $59.

The group was arrested Wednesday when it was claimed the men had gathered outside the home of L. Robinson, Andalusia, making threats upon the latter, who is an employee of the Hulmeville Hosiery Company.

The five are: Dayton Geary, William Bell, Oscar Mann, Arthur Donohue, and Raymond Thomas.

Two other arrests in connection with the trouble at the hosiery mill have taken place since Friday. Constable Howard Potter, Hulmeville, also employed by the mill operators, was arrested upon a charge of assault and battery brought by Miss Marie McCarthy, Hulmeville, Friday evening. It was during the course of a fracas near the mill property, where a group of non-workers had gathered at the closing hour, that Constable Potter is alleged to have taken hold of the McCarthy girl when trouble was believed brewing. At a hearing held before Justice of the Peace Daniel H. Bilker, South Langhorne, the case was appealed to court by Potter.

Albert Kauffman, Hulmeville, was also arrested Saturday on a charge brought by Florence Peffer, Philadelphia. The charge lodged against the Hulmeville man at the hearing was malicious mischief. The complaint made by the woman was that a gun fired by Kauffman early Saturday morning was believed done as an act against her and others picketing with her. Kauffman, in defense, stated that he had an agreement with the night watchman to fire a shot should any one be noticed prowling about the mill, in order that the watchman would notice unusual actions. Kauffman stated he fired from a rear window, aiming toward the ground. He appealed the case to court. It was stated at the hearing that there is no ordinance in the borough of Hulmeville forbidding the shooting of firearms.
